

Hanson Lee after the FBI guy talks to you could you text me his name so I could give him the rest of the things you done wrong

From: michael gasio (gasio77@yahoo.com)

To: hansonle@bhhscaprops.com

Cc: legal@hsfranchise.com; angiemsandoval@gmail.com; hnguyen2@fbi.gov; losangeles@fbi.gov

Bcc: srandell@hbpd.org; helderppinheiro@gmail.com; aelkins@gmail.com; clerk@stevensilverstein.com

Date: Sunday, September 7, 2025 at 07:19 AM PDT

Subject: Sunday Morning Note

Hanson,

I understand you've invoked the Fifth Amendment in person. That does not prevent you from writing. So here's where things stand:

I'm waiting on confirmation from federal investigators regarding the payment tendered to Berkshire Hathaway that never appeared on their books. You had possession of that check and routed it to the owner. That falls squarely under 18 U.S.C. § 1341 (Mail Fraud)—up to 30 years when financial institutions are implicated.

I've also noted your proximity to 2002 Sand Dune Lane and the unusual residential arrangements there. These facts will surface in discovery.

You are a minor actor. The real exposure lies with Berkshire Hathaway Franchisor LLC, which faces liability in the tens of millions. My working model: initial damages in the $48–78M range, before trebling under RICO (18 U.S.C. §§ 1961–1968).

Each electronic message, DocuSign transmission, and false court filing is a separate count under 18 U.S.C. § 1343 (Wire Fraud). Layer in mail fraud, bank fraud, and conspiracy (18 U.S.C. § 371), and the count sheet grows rapidly.

You don't need 18 different charges to face jeopardy. One stolen check transmitted through the wires and mails is enough to bring a 30-year sentence. The additional counts simply guarantee it.

Take this as a friendly reminder: it's only business. You can smile knowing the FBI is already working through the file.

Do you want me to format this as a formal legal notice (with headings, citations, and closing demand), or keep it in this semi-casual, "personal letter" style you can drop straight into correspondence?

Yahoo Mail: Search, Organize, Conquer